John Christensen is the co-founder and Director of the International Secretariat of the Tax Justice Network (TJN) based in the United Kingdom. TJN coordinates and supports international research initiatives on tax policy, capital flight, and the enabling role that secrecy jurisdictions play in the loss of resources from developing countries. TJN has been called one of the world's most effective civil society organizations working on international financial issues.

Mr. Christensen will speak about current debates in Europe, the G8 and the OECD with respect to international tax policy. He will also provide an overview of the massive damages to the economies of developing countries due to the offshore financial system. TJN believes that developing countries must replace dependency on foreign aid by mobilizing their own domestic resources for development.

Trained as an auditor and economist, John has worked in several of the world’s poorer countries. For eleven years he was economic adviser to the government of the Channel Island of Jersey which gives him an insider’s perspective of how the secretive offshore financial system works.

John has published widely on the fault-lines in the global financial system, including “Tax us if You Can” (2005) and “Closing the Floodgates” (2007). His article, “The Hidden Trillions: Secrecy corruption and the offshore interface” was published last year in Crime, Law and Social Change.
